SINGULAR SUICIDE.—About 5 o'clock last evening, a young man named Massett went into Saulman's restaurant, on California street, and seated himself at one of the tables, ordered a sumptuous repast. When it was brought, he ate and drank of it with great relish, and then he ordered a bottle of wine costing $2, poured and drank off about two-thirds of the contents, and then slowly leaning back in his chair, drew a single-barreled pistol from his pocket, and placing the muzzle in his mouth, fired. The report startled the people in the restaurant, and on looking around they saw him lying on his back, with blood streaming from his mouth. Several persons rushed to him, but he arose, and one of the attendants supported him on his feet. As soon as he could clear the blood out of his throat and mouth he began to express his surprise that a leaden bullet could be shot through a man's mouth and lodge in his brain without even stunning him. He refused to give his name or any reason for his act. On examination it was discovered that the bullet had grazed the roof of his mouth, cut the palate, and descended probably with the remainder of his repast. From the office he was taken to the station house for safe keeping. There he conversed freely about the matter, expressing his utter astonishment that a pistol at such short range should fail of the effect intended. He said he thought he had "a dead sure thing," and had he even dreamed of failure he would have used a blunderbuss. He declared he had experienced much trouble, and deemed that death was the best way to end his misfortunes; but added that he had failed. He is said to be a relative of Stephen Massett, and is a young man of respectable appearance and good address.—San Francisco Bulletin, Dec. 26th.

ATTEMPT AT POISONING.—The Newark Courier of Thursday evening says: Last Saturday night, about ten o'clock, as Mrs. Gaffney, bridge-tender of the Willow-street bridge in Trenton, was preparing for bed, she heard a knock at the door, and answered it. A young man confronted her, having a large cake in his hand, which he said, had been sent as a New Year's present for the daughter, a young woman of eighteen years, who was sleeping on the settee. Mrs. Gaffney asked the young man to come into the house, but he declined, saying that he had merely been made the bearer of the present. Mrs. Gaffney, supposing that some one had remembered her widowhood with a New Year's gift, called her daughter, and they proceeded to cut open the magnificent cake. In the centre was a plug of a strange compound, which the mother tasted with the tip of her tongue. She was shortly after seized with pains and sickness, and remained ill for hours. The cake was put away, and Mrs. Gaffney preserved silence regarding the occurrence. She anxiously waited to see if she could find the young man who brought the cake; but, failing in that, she took the cake to a druggist's in the city, who told her that it was poisonous in the highest degree, and that a very little of it would cause death.

The affair has created no little sensation among the neighbors and friends of the widow, who has been engaged some time in litigation to secure her rightful share of property under her husband's will. Whether the cake was intended to poison only the daughter, or to remove all belonging to the widow from the world, remains a secret thus far, and the most careful investigation fails to discover the young man who brought the cake.

THE LOVE ROMANCE IN SAM HOUSTON'S LIFE.—The most singular incident in the eventful life of Sam Houston, and one never hitherto explained, was his abandonment of the governorship of Tennessee only three days after marrying a young wife. He became a voluntary exile among the Indians of the plains for years thereafter, was made a great chief, and only reappeared in public life when Texas was struggling for independence. The Galveston News lifts the veil from this secret chamber of Houston's heart by this strange narration:—"What we know about this matter is so honorable to him that we shall for the first time put it in print. We may premise that our information is derived indirectly from one now deceased, who during her life had a right to know what caused this strange episode in the life of the great man. Governor Houston's first bride was a Tennessee belle of surprising beauty and of considerable social rank. She was, if not the affianced bride, at least the sweetheart of a neighboring gentleman when Gov. Houston sought her hand. Her family, being very ambitious, forced the match and she was married. After retiring to her bridal chamber, her deportment was such as to cause him to suspect that, while her hand was his, her heart was another's. She confessed the truth when interrogated, and while promising fidelity and wifely duty, declared herself unable to love him. He at once retired from the house. He then resigned his position and went among the Comanches. In due course of time the lady sought and obtained a divorce."

COMMENDABLE ACT.—A great many persons have an opinion that the Association for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is not doing a very great amount of good; but the president, Mr. T. F. Gatchell, last night, about 7:45 o'clock, demonstrated that he at least was determined to do his work. As car No. 3 was being driven along Pennsylvania avenue between Ninth and Tenth streets, over-crowded with passengers for two poor brutes to draw, Mr. Gatchell called on Sergeant Kneas and officer Markwood to arrest the driver, at the same time showing his authority for such action. The officers stopped the car and made the conductor relieve it of half of its occupants, and then, with an ordinary load still left in the car, allowed the driver to proceed. The remainder of the passengers were taken by a car following, a few of them contending that the president of the association, or any other man, had no right to stop them on their way. This is commendable in Mr. G. and the thanks of the community are due him for his prompt and decisive action.—Washington Chronicle.

Among recent deaths of notable personages in England is that of Mr. Stephen Glover, who died in London at the age of 58 years. Mr. Glover was a popular story-writer, and was also the author of many popular songs—among them, "What are the Wild Waves Saying?" "Why do Summer Roses Fade?" and "The Merry Merry Sunshine."

THE GREAT SOUTHERN PIANO MANUFACTORY.

WM. KNABE & CO.
Manufacturers of
GRAND SQUARE AND UPRIGHT PIANOS-FORTES.
BALTIMORE, MD.

These Instruments have been before the public for nearly thirty years, and upon their excellence alone attained an unrivalled pre-eminence, which pronounces them unequalled. Their combines great power, sweetness and fine singing quality, as well as great purity of intonation, and sweetness throughout the entire scale. Their is pliant and elastic, and entirely free from the stiffness found in so many Pianos.

IN WORKMANSHIP they are unequalled, using none but the very best seasoned material, of the largest capital expended in our business enabling us to keep continually an immense stock of lumber, &c., on hand.

All our SQUARE PIANOS have our New Improved Overstrung Scale and the Agraffa Treble.

We would call special attention to our late improvements in GRAND PIANOS and SQUARE GRANDS. Patented Aug. 14, 1866, which bring the Piano nearer perfection than has yet been attained.

Every Piano fully warranted for Five Years. We have made arrangements for the Sale Wholesale Agency for the most celebrated PALESTINE ORGANS and MELODEONS, which we offer, wholesale and retail, at lowest factory prices.
